

HONOR SOCIETY
— STRENGTH & HONOR —

HonorSociety.org Chapters

HonorSociety.org is a leading honor society that helps students maximize their potential in academics, leadership and community service.

HonorSociety.org is focused on helping people succeed by connecting members with the right people and opportunities to help them achieve their goals. In order to nurture those connections, HonorSociety.org introduced campus chapters at universities across the country as a way for members to receive an elevated member experience. Faculty advisors are needed as mentors to the chapter executive board. Advisors are approached by the chapter founders because they are respected members of the university community. The most important role of the faculty advisor is to bring their knowledge and expertise to the chapter.

See below for more details about the becoming a faculty advisor for your HonorSociety.org Chapter

HONOR SOCIETY
— STRENGTH & HONOR —

HonorSociety.org's mission is to facilitate members to realize their highest potential through the advancement of academics, leadership and networking. Our core values include: Motivation, Discipline, Integrity, Collaboration, Innovation, Diversity, and Excellence.

Chapters are a vital piece to building the goal-oriented members of this network. HonorSociety.org Chapters allow members to have an in-person support system that allow them to reach their goals and excel academically. Members of chapters gain real-world leadership experience and are positive influences on campus and within their communities.

As a faculty advisor, you will work one-on-one with the chapter president to ensure that the chapter is aligned with the university policies regarding student organizations, as well as the HonorSociety.org constitution. This role is vital to the success of the HonorSociety.org chapter because the chapter board members value the advisor's mentorship and support.

Benefits of serving as a faculty advisor

Help students

Faculty advisors get the opportunity to help students develop the leadership skills that will prepare them for their future beyond graduation. Serving as a faculty advisor is a great way to gain experience mentoring students beyond the academic department that they work in. Faculty advisors are looked up to by chapter members because of the sound advice that they provide in regards to chapter decisions and academic growth.

Be involved on campus

Many faculty advisors accept the role as faculty advisor because they are looking for a way to become more involved on campus. By working with the chapter, faculty advisors get to work with students outside of their classroom. Faculty advisors work closely enough with the members that they are able to write personalized recommendation letters for when the members are applying for jobs after graduation or graduate school programs.

Personal Growth

As a mentor, faculty advisors are given the opportunity to be a part of an organization that aligns with their goal-oriented interests. One of the core-values of HonorSociety.org is to seek growth and progress both on a personal level as well as in one's career.

Faculty advisors are critical to the success of our chapters and we thank you for considering this opportunity.

Please reach out to chapters@honorsociety.org for any further questions you may have